16
17 On December 11, 2013, Cassie Roberts was released on a $150,000 unsecured bond to 18 reside with a third-party custodian at her home in Richmond. Three viable sureties signed onto 19 the bond. As a condition of release, Ms. Roberts was placed on electronic monitoring. She is 20 permitted to leave her residence for court appearances, legal visits, medical and treatment 21 appointments, and for employment purposes as approved by pretrial services. Ms. Roberts has 22 been in compliance with all her conditions of release. She now requests that the Court modify 23 her conditions of release to permit her to leave her residence for a period of up to six hours in 24 order to shop for Christmas gifts for her family and children. She would not be permitted to 25 enter the Tenderloin, and she would be required to inform the pretrial services officer where she 26 intends to shop. She further requests that pretrial services be given the discretion to permit her to

1 leave her residence for child care purposes. Pretrial services officer Silvio Lugo does not oppose 2 this modification. The government also does not oppose this modification.

15
16 In light of the parties' stipulation, it is hereby ORDERED that the defendant's conditions 17 of release shall be modified such that the defendant shall be permitted to leave her residence to 18 shop for Christmas gifts. She shall not enter the Tenderloin and pretrial services shall approve 19 the location and timing of her shopping. The Court further modifies the bond to give pretrial
20 services the discretion to allow the defendant to leave her residence for child care purposes. All 21 other conditions of release remain in place. Defendant shall only be allowed to 22 shop for her Christmas gifts for no more than 6 hours.
